The essential reset question is not 'Who am I?' but 'Who is my God?' — and whether you truly trust Him with everything running in the background of your life.

Psalm 46:1

“

God is so great. He is so beyond our comprehension. He puts on light shows that absolutely will shut down the process of your brain.

2

The sons of Korah could write a song of praise during a siege because they had a word from God — your confidence comes from what God has said, not from your circumstances.

“

We're confident that he raised us up out of death, but why can't we be just as confident that he's going to raise us up on Monday?

3

Hezekiah's prayer at the fork in the road shows us the right response to threats: spread it before the Lord first, not last.

2 Kings 19:14-15

“

Don't put it down too quick. Don't turn the page too quick. Don't go to start right notes real quick. Just stop, breathe that in, soak that in.

4

Be still and know that I am God is not a cozy devotional phrase — it is a battlefield declaration of trust in the sovereignty of God while under siege.

“

If you want to succeed, align your life with what God has already told you he is going to do.

5

If you believe God can save you from death to eternal life, you can trust Him to lead you through tomorrow — relinquish fear, control, bitterness, overthinking, and frustration to Him.

“

They might not have found your tunnel yet, but don't count God out.
